

August 1, 2007

For Immediate Release

Contact: Christy Colbert, AOTMP
(317) 264-2000

Joe Basili Joins AOTMP as Vice President of Research

Industry thought leader will lead efforts to bring best practices to TEM Suppliers

(Indianapolis, IN) – AOTMP, the authority on standards and best practices for telecom management, announced today that Joe Basili, has joined the company as Vice President of Research. For nearly four years, AOTMP has offered skills assessments, environment assessments, and training certifications to thousands of telecom and IT end users in the US and abroad. Bringing AOTMP's best practices and standards to the TEM provider community enables AOTMP to continue its mission to move the industry forward, and bring TEM technology and solution providers and end users closer to reaching a common goal of an efficient, well-managed telecom environment.

“Joe brings experience and understanding of the industry that is ideal for AOTMP's continued focus on staff development, telecom environments, business alignment, and TEM providers. With more than 20 years experience in professional services consulting, marketing, sales, operations, and research, he is well prepared for this role. His market analysis of telecom expense management and network performance management and standing as a resource for industry publications make Joe a great fit for AOTMP. We look forward to his contribution to our continued growth,” said Tim Lybrook, AOTMP's President and CEO.

“This is a great opportunity to leverage AOTMP's relationships with enterprise end users. I'm looking forward to working in a constructive way to improve the industry and help suppliers fulfill the promise of TEM. This role will also allow me to gain more insight into features and functionality offered by solution providers and document the market value of formal telecom expense management programs,” said Joe Basili.

One of Basili's first duties involves serving as co-chairperson of AOTMP's upcoming TEM Decisions '07 event for TEM service providers. He will assist with educational sessions, consult with participants on their position in the industry, and author an event brief for end users that will highlight findings from the conference and attendees' commitment to customer satisfaction. Find more information on this inaugural industry event, visit www.temdecisions.com.

About AOTMP

AOTMP, headquartered in Indianapolis, IN, is the unmatched authority on standards and best practices for telecom management. AOTMP focuses on providing information, resources, tools, and benchmarking standards for professionals in the telecom industry through a number of certification programs and online mediums, including an unparalleled telecom knowledge base and comprehensive skills assessment offering. For more information, please visit www.aotmp.com.

- ## -